I find that inspiration comes from absolutely everything, even when you are not consciously seeking it. I have long been a fan of Andy Warhol's work. I have been quite fortunate to have seen quite a few of his works in person. It was not until last year that I really considered the relationship between his work and mine. I paint, I do screen printing, I marry the two? "Rue Euphoria" was the first piece completed in this series. I fell in love with Zendaya's portrayal of the tragic heroine Rue Bennett. Although I was not consciously channeling Warhol's "Marilyn Monroe Gold", this show made me consider the connection. From here, it was easy to continue the series knowingly drawing elements from Warhol without losing myself. I am using a fictionalized character to tell a no less American tragedy.
