There is a history that starts with the first mark on a blank canvas. Creating for me is a solitary and introspective act. I draw inspiration from all the experiences in my life and this moment. Each of my paintings has a story, an essence and character of its own. I work without a plan. Each brushstroke, collage piece or mark informs the next until the painting comes to a place of balance and harmony. I hope anyone who sees my work will be intrigued enough to take a closer look.
