Toby Tover is influenced by ever-changing images around her in current and vintage media (as well as her always-handy camera), uses her skillful painterly techniques and true understanding of her subjects' psychology to create these evocative, iconic pieces. "I paint subjects to elicit a connectedness with the viewer. Everyday life 'clip shots' have held a fascination for me. Satire, humor and personal isolation are strong threads that weave themselves throughout the figurative work. The images have been processed through my own personal visual filter. I paint the genre of 'human/social condition narratives' which come from my fascination with movies, theater and personal or documentary photography
